Receiving the Word

This classic work explains why some thought leaders of the church no longer accept the Bible as fully inspired, trustworthy, and the sole-authoritative norm for doctrine and practice. The book also shows how new views about the Bible is impacting our biblical teachings and lifestyle.

Searching the Scriptures

This 96-page book puts to rest the mistaken notion that ordaining women as elders or pastors is cultural issue to be decided by the cultural preferences of different segments of the world church. By carefully explaining what the issues are and are not, the book compellingly reveals that women's ordination is a theological issue that should settled by the Bible.
